Chapter 1 by Alva

Once op on a time there was a ladybug called Ibou. He lost his family when he was a little shit, poor Ibou. He has six spots on its back, and he was very happy. But Ibou had friends, very much friends. One of them was Benny, he was very kind. He was also a ladubug. But he had four spots on its back.

One day Ibou flew to some flowers on a meadow. It was so many of them and Ibou was so happy. When he came to the first flower he laughed a little. The flower was red and beautiful. But then a big black shadow covered Ibou. What was that?

It was Benny, the male ladybug. Jealous of Ibou's two extra spots, Benny had come to kill her. He loomed above, with a twig. He began to beat her mercilessly until she fell from the flower petal in a heap on the ground and lost consciousness.

She awoke in what appeared to be a prison inside a massive yellow flower. Benny was there, standing ominously over her. As she started to regain her footing, he rushed at her. The quick movement startled her and she fell. Their faces were now right next to each other.

"Why couldn't you love me?" asked Benny. He spoke in a broken and hoarse tone as if he just finished from a screaming match. "We grew up together. We had such fun. But you had to choose him."

It was in that moment Ibou noticed Benny was her soon-to-be husband Isaac. He was clearly unconscious and slowly bleeding on the floor.

Chapter 4 by intellikat

"Issac, oh dear god, Issac," Ibou moaned, trying to crawl toward her love. Benny stopped her way.

"You're going nowhere. You bug me too much." He began to laugh, and then unscrewed the cap on a large (bug-sized) can of gasoline. He began to pour the thick-smelling liquid over Ibou's head and back, and then trailed it over to the bleeding Issac.

"You too are going to be really hot lovers," Benny smirked. "This is going to be a real gas."

Benny flicked a (bug-sized) lighter and began chuckling. He dropped it onto the trail of gasoline and began to laugh mercilessly as the floor ignited.

Chapter 5 by intellikat

Ibou watched in terror as the flames raced toward her and her lover. Suddenly, Batbug burst through the skylight of the yellow flower (yes, it had been designed with a skylight) and landed between the two lovers, he pulled a device from his utility belt and began to extinguish the flames.
